

A person's health is influenced by many factors, and communication with doctors is essential. Persons who stutter may have unique experiences with or concerns about doctors' visits. Your experiences as a person who stutter can help everyone learn—doctors and patients included—how well we are doing and how to provide you better care. We will be recruiting about 30 persons who stutter to participate in 3 separate focus groups to explore these issues and more. We will be recruiting near the registration table during the early portions of the conference. You may qualify for the study if you are a person who stutters and you are between the ages 18-70.
