

Research Study at Villanova University

The Word Recognition and Auditory Perception Lab at Villanova University is recruiting adults who stutter for a research study on perception and language.

In the study, you will listen to speech sounds and respond to what you hear while your brainwaves are recorded. The study will take place on Villanova's campus and last approximately 3 hours. You will receive $16/hr for your participation.

Email gervino@villanova.edu if you are interested in participating or for more information.
